Inland Navigation.

A SPIRIT of internal improvement prevails in our country, which promises the most happy results. The Albany Advertiser contains [illegible] learned Memorial of the Citizens of New-York to the Legislature of that State, in favor of a Canal Navigation between the Great Western Lakes and the Tide Waters of the Hudson, which cites the prosperity of ancient Egypt, of China, of England and Holland, in support of its object, the connecting of the Western and the Atlantic sections in an easy commercial intercourse.—From the Memorial we make the following extract, which will give the reader an idea of the grandeur of the design:—

"The general arguments in favor of inland navigation, apply with peculiar force to the United States, and most emphatically to this State. A geographical view of the country will at once demonstrate the unexampled prosperity that will arise from our cultivating the advantages which nature has dispensed with so liberal a hand. A great chain of mountains passes through the U. S. and divides them into eastern and western America. In various places, rivers break through these mountains, and are finally discharged into the ocean.—To the west there is a collection of inland lakes, exceeding in its aggregate extent some of the most celebrated seas of the old world. Atlantic America, on account of the priority of its settlement, its vicinity to the ocean, and its favorable position for commerce, has many advantages. The western country, however, has a decided superiority in the fertility of its soil, the benignity of its climate, and the extent of its territory. To connect these great sections by inland navigation, to unite our Mediterranean seas with the ocean, is evidently an object of the first importance to the general prosperity. Nature has effected this in some measure; the St. Lawrence emanates from the Lakes, and discharges itself into the ocean in a foreign territory. Some of the streams which flow into the Mississippi originate near the [illegible] approach the Mohawk. But our Hudson has decided advantages. It affords a tide navigation for vessels of 80 tons to Albany and Troy, 160 miles above New-York, and this peculiarity distinguishes it from all the other bays and rivers in the United States, viz.

"The importance of the Hudson river to the old settled parts of the State, may be observed in the immense wealth which is daily borne on its waters, in the flourishing villages and cities on its banks, and in the opulence and prosperity of all the country connected with it, either remotely or immediately. It may also be readily conceived, if we only suppose, that by some awful physical calamity, some overwhelming convulsion of nature, this great river was exhausted of its waters. Where then would be the abundance of our markets, the prosperity of our farmers, the wealth of our merchants? Our villages would become deserted; our flourishing cities would be converted into masses of mouldering ruins, and this State would be precipitated into poverty and insignificance.—If a river or natural canal, navigable about 170 miles, has been productive of such signal benefits, what blessings might not be expected, if it were extended Three Hundred Miles, through the most fertile country in the Universe, and united with the great Seas of the West! The contemplated canal would be this extension; and, viewed in reference only to the productions and consumptions of the State, would perhaps convey more riches on its waters, than any other canal in the world.—Connected with the Hudson, it might be considered as a navigable stream that extends 150 miles through a fruitful country, embracing a great population, and abounding with all the productions of industry.—If we were to suppose all the rivers and canals in England and Wales combined into one, and discharged into the ocean at a great city, after passing through the heart of that country, then we can form a distinct idea of the importance of the projected canal.—But it indeed comprehends within its influence a greater extent of territory, which will in time embrace a greater population.—If this work be so important, when we confine our views to this State alone, how unspeakably beneficial must it appear, when we extend our contemplations to the great Lakes, and the country connected with them!—Waters extending two thousand miles from the beginning of the canal, and a country containing more territory than all Great-

[illegible] and at least [illegible] of France.

The Memorial states, that Lake Erie is 561 feet above the tide-waters at Troy, and that the only higher ground between it and the Hudson is but a few miles from the Lakes, and can be easily cut through; that the whole line, so [illegible] in the country, would not require more than 63 locks; and the expense is estimated at $ 20,000 a mile, or [illegible] millions for the whole.

Foreign News.

From French and English Papers received at New-York.

PARIS, Dec. 6.

The following important document has just been made public.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE DUKE DE RICHELIEU.

The Allied Sovereigns having confided to Marshal the Duke of Wellington the command in chief of those of those of their troops, which, according to the 5th article of the treaty, concluded this day with France, are to remain in this country during a certain number of years, the undersigned ministers, &c. &c. think it their duty to give some explanation to his excellency the Duc de Richelieu as to the nature and extent of the powers attached to this command.

Although chiefly guided with respect to this measure by motives tending to the safety and welfare of their subjects, and being very far from having any intention of employing their troops in aid of the police, or of the internal administration of France, or in any manner that might compromise or interfere with the free exercise of the royal authority in this country, the Allied Sovereigns have, however, in consideration of the high interest which they take in supporting the power of legitimate sovereigns, promised to his Most Christian Majesty to support him with their arms against every revolutionary convulsion which might tend to overthrow, by force, the order of things at present established, and to menace, also, again the general tranquility of Europe. They do not, however, dissemble, that in the variety of forms under which the revolutionary spirit might again manifest itself in France, doubts might arise as to the nature of the case which might call for the intervention of a foreign force; and feeling the difficulty of framing any instructions precisely applicable to each particular case, the Allied Sovereigns have thought it better to leave it to the tried prudence and discretion of the [illegible] dere, always supposing that he would not in any case so determine, without having concerted his measures with the King of France, or without giving information, as soon as possible, to the Allied Sovereigns, of the motives which may have induced him to come to such determination. And, as in order to guide the Duke of Wellington in the choice of his arrangements, it will be important that he should be correctly informed of the events which may occur in France, the ministers of the four Allied Courts, accredited to his Most Christian Majesty, have received orders to maintain a regular correspondence with the Duke of Wellington, and to provide at the same time for an intermediate one between the French government and the commander in chief of the allied troops, for the purpose of transmitting to the French government the communications which the Duke of Wellington may have occasion to address to it, and of communicating to the Marshal the suggestions or requisitions which the Court of France may wish in future to make to him.

The undersigned flatter themselves that the Duke de Richelieu will readily recognize in these arrangements the same character and the same principles, which have been manifested in concerting and adapting the measures of the military occupation of a part of France. They carry with them also, on quitting this country, the consoling precaution, that notwithstanding the elements of disorder, which France may still contain, the effect of revolutionary events, a wise and paternal government, proceeding in a proper manner to tranquilize and conciliate the minds of the people, and abstaining from every act, contrary to such a system, may not only succeed in maintaining the public tranquility, but also in re-establishing universal union and confidence, relieving likewise, as much as the proceedings of government can effect it, the Allied Powers from the painful necessity of having recourse to the measures, which, in case of any new convulsion, would be imperiously prescribed to them by the duty of providing for the safety of their own subjects, and the general tranquility of Europe.

Ministers of the Allied Powers.

Paris, Nov. 20, 1815.

LONDON, DEC. 9.

A private letter mentions, that the [illegible] Regiments [illegible] from France will take the route of Havre-de-Grace. But the Guards are still in Paris, remaining there, it is supposed, in consequence of a request made to the Duke of Wellington by the Duke de Richelieu. The Duke of Wellington gave a splendid ball on the 1st inst. in celebration of the peace.

It is mentioned in a private letter from Paris, that M. Forbin had laid on the table of the Chamber of Deputies, a notice of a motion for the recal and trial of Fouché.

The Dutch letters say, the departure of the Prince of Orange for St. Petersburgh has given rise to much interesting speculation on the future union of Russian interests with those of the Netherlands, and the consequent decline of British influence in the latter quarter.

The Court of Portugal persists in remaining at Brazil, and refuses to return to Europe. That Court lately received a courier from Madrid with dispatches, the contents of which had not transpired; but it is supposed that Spain requests the Prince Regent to declare war against the Independents; and that Ferdinand VII. has asked one of the daughters of the Prince in marriage.

The discussions between our government and Ferdinand of Spain, which had grown pretty warm, are now become more conciliatory; but the persecution of the patriots has not decreased. Three millions of dollars have arrived at Cadiz from Lima; in addition to this supply, Ferdinand is about to impose a contribution of five millions sterling on all classes of people of Old Spain, excepting the Clergy!

LONDON, DEC. 15.

The English troops who are to leave France and return to England, are daily expected at Dover, where Col. Marlay, belonging to the quarter-master general's department, has arrived, to superintend their debarkation and direct their march. These troops amount to about 15,000 men, and will proceed to their respective destinations, part along the coast and part through Canterbury.

Several regiments of cavalry and infantry, have, it is said, received orders to pass on to Ireland and reinforce the troops of the line already in that country.

A letter from Paris, says, "six lieut. generals, and 18 Marechaux de Camp, have been sent to the Abbey. Papers have been found in the house of General Bellaird, which throw a great light upon treasonable plans which have lately been formed. It is affirmed that many enemies of tranquility will probably be banished forever to uninhabited countries. Now, that France has such large sums to pay, the voice of the public [illegible] to be louder, that the [illegible] enriched themselves at the expence of foreign countries, and plunged France into misfortunes.

LONDON, DEC. 16.—The Duke of Norfolk died early this morning at his Castle in Sussex. He is succeeded in his titles, &c by B. E. Howard, Esq. of Fornham, in Suffolk. The Duke's annual income was 68,000*l.* sterling.

The Flanders mail contains the following important intelligence, under the date of Rome, Nov. 21.—"It is asserted that the Ministers of the great powers have delivered to his Eminence the Cardinal Secretary of State, the treaty of alliance relative to the war against the Barbary powers, and that it has been ratified by all the Sovereigns, in their quality of Grand Masters of the several religious and military orders in their dominions. By this act the powers engage not only to put an end to the white slave trade, which the African governments carry on with equal insolence and impunity; but in order to prevent the return of acts of violence which disgrace humanity, the powers also declare, that they will establish there the form of government which shall afford the best guarantee. The contingent of the troops for this new species of war will be the same, and no one will be permitted, under any pretence whatever, to keep up a greater number of troops than is fixed by the treaty. All the troops shall have the same uniform. His Holiness the Pope shall be at liberty to send a Legate, but who shall not interfere in temporal matters. This Treaty, which consists of 133 articles, fixes, that all the Christians shall be set at liberty, and cannot make a part of the army destined to occupy the country. The Sublime Porte, it is said, remains neuter in this war, and will receive guarantees for its European possessions. One is astonished at knowing the treaty against the pirates, and not to know any thing of what has passed in the consistory where this affair has been treated. It is certain that his Holiness has not issued any Bull on the subject of this new crusade. It is said that his Holiness will give to the Grand Masters of the Military Orders a suit of armor and a banner. The whole of the allied forces is fixed by treaty at 45,000 men."

LONDON, DEC. 18.

The intended marriage of the Prince of Orange, with the sister of the Emperor of Russia, has been officially announced at the Hague.

A part of the 66th regiment embarked at Portsmouth on Monday, for St. Helena.

CONGRESS.

SENATE.

Wednesday, January 31.

FINISHED BUSINESS.

THE bill to continue the Double Duties on imports, to June 30th, passed, as follows:—

YEAS—Messrs. Barbour, Barry, Bibb, Brown, Chace, Condit, Fromentin, Gaillard, Howell, Hunter, Lacock, Mason, N. H. Mason, Va. Morrow, Roberts, Ruggles, Sanford, Talbot, Tait, Taylor, Turner, Varnum, Wells, Williams, Wilson—[illegible].

NAYS—Messrs. Dana, Goldsborough, Horsey, Thompson, Tichenor—5.

The bill to continue the Duties on Stamps and Refined Sugar, also passed

☞ These bills only require the approbation of the President to become Laws.

ALTERING THE CONSTITUTION.

A motion is before the Senate, made by Mr. Bibb, for the proposition of the following Amendment to the Constitution of the U. States:—

"The Senators of the United States shall be chosen for three years."

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Monday, January 29.

Mr. Parris presented a petition from Maine, against the removal of the District Court from Wiscasset to Portland.

Mr. King presented the petition of Jabez Mowry and others, citizens of the U. States, stating that upon the capture of Eastport, by the British forces during the late war, a number of bonds given by them to the United States to secure the duties on imported merchandize, fell into the hands of the British authorities, that suits have been commenced against some of them by the British government in Halifax, and judgment decreed; that the cases are now pending before the higher courts in Great-Britain, &c.; and that suits have also been commenced against them by the authorities of the United States, and praying relief from these double prosecutions:

Mr. Yancey made a report, laying down the principle, that Paymasters, ought, in all cases, to be made responsible for losses of money received by them.—The same gentleman presented a bill, recognizing the principle, that the government ought to bear the risk of transmission of money, until it was paid into the hands of those to whom it was actually due.

The 1816 Ordnance and Ordnance Stores appropriation bill, was twice read.

A committee was appointed, (on application of the Post-Master-General,) to investigate the conduct of the Post-[illegible]ment. [illegible]te, on motion of Mr. C[illegible]

"Resolved, That the [illegible] Military Affairs, be ins[illegible] into the expediency of [illegible] by laws for paying th[illegible] volunteers and militia corps in the service of the United States during the late war with Great-Britain for the transportation of baggage, when such transportation was not furnished by the government.

THE REVENUE.

The House in Committee again took up the motion to repeal the Direct Tax. Messrs. Parris, M'Kee, and Hopkinson, advocated, and Mr. Clap opposed the motion. The two latter covered the whole field of the general policy, past, and present, of the government. No question was taken.

REPEAL OF DUTIES ON DOMESTIC MANUFACTURES.

A motion to repeal the above Duties, from and after the 18th day of April, was taken up in Committee, agreed to, and a Committee directed to bring in a bill accordingly.

Mr. Randolph laid upon the table the following:

"Resolved, That it is expedient to reduce the Military Establishment of the United States.—Adj.

Tuesday, January 30.

A number of southern and western petitions were read and committed.—Some local uninteresting bills passed stages.

Capt. J. D. Henly, of the navy, had leave to withdraw his petition.

THE REVENUE.

The House, in committee, again took up the proposition to repeal the Direct Tax:—

Mr. Wright and Mr. King, both delivered speeches at much length, in support of the motion. Both gentlemen launched their opinions on public affairs; the latter in reply to the advocates of the government. No question taken.—Adj.

Wednesday, January 31.

The day was again occupied in debate on the motion to repeal the Direct Tax.—Mr. Ross supported, and Messrs. Calhoun and Reynolds opposed the motion. Mr. Randolph replied to Mr. Calhoun. No question was taken.

The President transmitted a report of the Secretary of State, with sundry documents, respecting the transactions at Dartmoor, in April, 1815. They were ordered to be printed. Adj.

Thursday, February 1.

Among the petitions presented, was one from Mrs. O'Flyng, praying pensions for her husband and three sons, who had all been in the service of the U. S.—Another from A. Law, praying an [illegible] with the [illegible] &c.

A bill to repeal the act imposing Duties on certain Manufactures of the U. S. was reported, read twice, and committed.

The Committee on the fiscal concerns of the General Post-Office, was authorized to send for persons and papers.

The House, in committee, resumed the consideration of the revenue subject. Mr. Tucker spoke against the repeal of the Direct Tax; and dilated on the state of the nation.

Mr. Randolph then moved that the Committee should rise to take into consideration his motion to reduce the Army. This motion having been negatived,

Mr. Randolph rose, and delivered a speech of three hours in reply to Messrs. Calhoun and Tucker. When he concluded the Committee rose, and had leave to sit again.

Mr. Randolph rose to make a motion respecting a discrepancy he had discovered between the account of the receipts and expenditures from the commencement of the government, recently laid before the House, and that which was laid before the Congress some years ago.

Before the motion was stated from the chair, it was discovered there was not a quorum present; and the House Adj.

Friday, Feb. 2.

As usual, several petitions were presented and referred

The House then resolved itself into a committee of the whole, Mr. Nelson in the chair, on the report of the committee of Ways and Means.

A bill making appropriations for the Ordnance Department, (for ordnance stores, fortifications, &c.) was taken up, and the blank therein, on motion of Mr. Lowndes, after some opposition from Messrs. Wright and King of Mass was filled up with the sum of 1,650,224 dollars.

The resolution reported by the committee of ways and means, and Mr. Hardin's motion to amend the same, respecting the direct tax, next occupied the attention of the committee of the whole; when

Mr. Johnston of K. in a speech of about an hour, delivered his sentiments on the various topics which had been introduced into the debate by preceding speakers, and particularly on our military affairs.

Mr. Lowndes then addressed the committee, in defence of the report under consideration, and in reply to the objections urged against it the course of the debate.

The question was then taken on Mr. Hardin's motion, so to amend the resolution as to declare it expedient to repeal the direct tax, and decided in the negative—

[illegible] amendment, [illegible]
Against it, 88

At the request of Mr. Hardin, the resolution was then laid on the table; and the committee took up the bill to repeal the duties on certain manufactures, which, having been gone through, the committee reported progress, and obtained [illegible] again.

[illegible] took up successively, the bi[illegible] appropriations for the ord[illegible]department, agreeing to the amendment made therein by the committee of the whole; and the bill to repeal the duties on certain domestic manufactures.—The latter bill was so amended, on motion of Mr. Sargeant, as to make the repeal take effect from the passage of the act, instead of the 18th of April next. Both bills were ordered to a third reading, and the House adjourned.

Saturday, Feb. 3.

The Speaker laid before the House a letter from Commodore Rodgers, soliciting the interference of Congress in a suit between John Donnell and himself, for the loss of a schooner and cargo, which loss is alledged to have taken place because she was stopped and examined by a squadron of ships commanded by the commodore during the late war.

Mr. Lattimore, from a select committee, made a report on the petition of the legislature of the Mississippi territory, relative to the Indian depredations, which was committed.

The Speaker laid before the House the annual report upon patents from the Department of State.

The engrossed bill to repeal the duties on domestic Manufactures, was read a third time and passed.

The House then again resolved itself into a committee of the whole, Mr. Nelson in the chair, on the report of the committee of ways and means, respecting the Revenue; and after a short time spent therein, the committee rose.

The House took up the report of the committee of the whole, on the proposition to reduce the annual direct tax to three millions. The amendment (agreed to on suggestion of Mr. Clay, in committee of the whole) to limit the tax to one year, so as to bring the question annually before the House—was concurred in by yeas and nays, by the following vote:—

For the amendment 109
Against it 16

Mr. Hardin then renewed the motion, which he had made without success in the committee of the whole, to amend the resolution so as to declare it expedient to repeal immediately the direct tax, and thereon demanded the yeas and nays.

Mr. Desha spoke a few words [illegible] of the [illegible] from not being able to hear Mr. B[illegible] distinctly on a former day, when the tion was made to reduce the direct He was desirous to reduce the tax, and to make it [illegible] but abolish it at present.

Mr. Ross also rose for a similar pose. He was now understood to that he would not object to a direct if necessary to defray the [illegible] pences of the government; but ing it might be dispensed with detriment to the public interest should vote for its repeal.

Mr. Stanford spoke at consi length against the direct tax and other internal taxes, as [illegible] correct policy were pursued; pointedly condemned the course ed of late years by the majority government, &c.

Mr. Burnside followed on the site side of the question; defended direct tax as necessary, and repli the reasons advanced against it.

Mr. M'Kee again supported the tion at some length, and urged the priety of repealing the direct tax.

Mr. Wright followed on the side, and warmly opposed the conti tion of the direct tax.

Mr. Gaston explained, in a speech, his motives for differing many of his colleagues and friends opposing the motion, and for len his support to the continuation of tax in question; to whom

Mr. Randolph replied, and reite his reasons in support of the mo not that he condemned the direct when necessary, because he beli it of all the most equitable, but at time he was utterly adverse to it

After a few words against the m from Mr. Woodward, and an ineffe al effort of Mr. Hardin, to procur adjournment, with the view of sub ting on Monday, some proposi which, if agreed to, would obvia necessity of the Direct Tax—

The question was taken on the tion to repeal the Tax entirely, an cided in the negative as follow Yeas 73, Nays 81.

Mr. Pickens then made a motio amend the resolution for continuin Direct Tax of three millions, so reduce the direct tax from three t millions; but, before the question taken, the House adjourned.

Massachusetts Nominatio

Gen. JOHN BROOKS, as Go and his Honor WILLIAM PHILL Lieut. Governor, of the Common of Massachusetts for the ensuin tical year, are announced as the candidates.—The democratic dates are not as yet announced.

The New-York Legislatu

Is now in session. A democratic cil of Appointment has been ch a majority of one. The House of Assembly have a Democratic Speaker by the same majority. In [illegible] a democratic member voted whose election is contested.

Governor Tompkins delivered a Speech to the Legislature of New-York on the 2d inst. He calls the attention of the Members to the making of Canals from the Hudson to Lakes Erie and Champlain—and of Roads in the same direction. He recommends an enlargement of the State Prison, as, on account of want of room there, more criminals had been pardoned than otherwise would have been!

Mr. Crawford.—This gentleman, it appears by a letter from the Hon. Mr. Bibb, speaking of the Presidency, said he was "[illegible] to be held up as a competitor [illegible] office."

Marshal [illegible] is said to have arrived at Baltimore from France. He is one of the Bonapartists proscribed in the Royal Decree of July 24.

On the 25th ult. Specie was at only two per cent. premium at Charleston, S.C. This was owing to the prevalence of an opinion that the Banks there were about to resume specie payments.

Fire.—On Monday night last, about 12 o'clock, our citizens were awakened with the cry of fire, which had broken out in the bake-house of Mr. William S. N. Allan.—When discovered the fire had made very considerable progress, and threatened destruction to the houses in the vicinity, but the spirited exertions of the Engine companies and other citizens, soon allayed the flames, and before any considerable damage was sustained. The want of fire-buckets on this occasion was sensibly felt—we hope it will never again occur.

Military Notice.

An interesting notice, to those concerned, from the District Pay-Office, will be found among our advertisements this day.

CHARLESTON, FEB. 1.

We learn by the schooner Rover, from Port-au-Prince, that the Richmond Packet, Capt. Burke, from this port, touched at Nassau, N. P. in her outward passage, and took Gen. Lee thence to Port-au-Prince.

Capt. Prince, of the Rover, also informs us, that Gen. Bolivar and his aids had arrived at Port-au-Prince from Carthagena, which place had fallen into the hands of Morilio, the King's General—Gen. B. wore his uniform as usual, and though dispirited in some degree by recent adversity, he was far from despairing of ultimate success.

In the escape of the inhabitants from Carthagena, information had been received of the most pitiable occurrences.—In one vessel, it was said, an hundred persons had been thrown overboard, perishing for food, and lesser numbers in others.

BOSTON, FEB. 9.

The Emperor of Austria, at the last dates, was still in Italy. He had introduced many reforms in the administration of affairs there, and by reducing the taxes, and other measures, had rendered his government highly acceptable to the people. At Venice he was taking efficient measures for the establishment of a marine on a large scale, and had already commenced the building of several vessels of large burthen.

The Emperor was about to proceed to Milan, and was also going to Florence, where he was to be met by the Pope, and the King of Naples.

SALEM, FEB. 8.

Guadaloupe Restored again.

By Capt. Davis, from Martinique, we are informed, that a British packet had arrived at St Pierre's, just before he sailed, with information that the island of Guadaloupe was given up to the French, and that the British troops were to evacuate it the 21st Jan.

PHILADELPHIA, JAN. 31.

Cure for Rheumatism.

The Eclectic Repertory, published by T. Dobson, for January, 1816, contains an interesting and ingenious essay on RHEUMATISM, by Dr. Balfour, of Edinburgh, which is worthy the attention of every person afflicted with this painful disease.

I shall not attempt giving even a sketch of his theory of the disease, but the simplicity and utility of his remedy are such that universal publicity should be given to it.

Take a bandage of flannel and bind it spirally round the limb or part affected, as tight as the patient can bear, and immediate relief will be experienced and a permanent cure soon effected:—When the diseased part is so situated that a bandage will not bear upon it, put a pad or roll of flannel under it, so as to produce a considerable pressure on the part affected.

A number of extraordinary cases of cures performed by this simple practice, are cited in the essay above alluded to, and proofs of its astonishing efficacy have been experienced in Philadelphia. Give it a fair and impartial trial and let the public hear the

From the United States Gazette.

The Fine Arts.

We publish the following extract of a letter, dated September 10, 1815, from a gentleman, alike distinguished by elegance, and by talents, now pursuing his studies on the continent, to a lady of this city.

"Will you have me stop a moment at Blenheim-House and Oxford? or shall we pass directly on to London, to the exhibition of the ancient masters in Pall-Mall, of the Royal Academy at Somerset-House, of Mr. West's? I saw at the last, the Picture destined for the Pennsylvania Hospital. It was just finished, and exhibited with the great picture of "Christ Rejected."—The contrast between this exhibition and the others I saw, was very impressive. The others were fashionable lounging places, crowded with those who came only to see each other, and resounding with talk and laughter. At Mr. West's, you found a room of moderate size filled; every one seated, not a word spoken, and almost every one, whose countenance you caught, in tears. A deep and solemn silence, as if the canvass was about to speak, and the assembly was anxious that not a word should be lost.—I believe this second picture of "Healing the Sick" is universally preferred to the first, so that you have lost nothing but the delay. It is, indeed, a princely present. In the scales it is a present of 3,000 guineas; to the progress of the art, and as a model for young artists in Philadelphia, I should suppose it would be invaluable."

Mr. Alston's Picture.

It is reported that this rarely equalled work of art has been brought from England to this city, and that arrangements will probably be made for its exhibition in the Academy of Fine Arts.—The subject is found in the 2d Book of Kings, chapter VIII. "And it came to pass, as they were burying a man, that behold they spied a band of men; and they cast the man into the sepulchre of Elitha. And when the man was set down, and touched the bones of Elisha, he revived and stood up on his feet."—This effort of genius has placed its author in the front rank of his cotemporaries in Europe. America may boast of him as one of her sons, and though like many others he has been under the necessity of finding in a distant land, occupation and reward,—filial affection has induced him to send his first great work to his native country. How deeply is it to be regretted that our Copely's, our West's, our Trumbull's, our Alston's, our Vanderline's, our Leslie's, &c. &c. have been obliged not only to seek fame, but bread, in the old world. It is to be hoped that this will not long continue.

This picture, added to the many excellent pictures which enrich the Academy, will greatly increase the attractions which it holds out to public taste.

Leslie.

The sudden developement of talent in this young artist will no doubt be remembered. He has for some years been in London, industriously occupied in cultivating that talent under the eye of Mr. West and others, his distinguished countrymen, and fame speaks loudly in his praise. As a portrait painter he is said already to have obtained great distinction—and fine specimens of his talents in the historical walks of the art, are exhibited in the academy in an original painting and a copy from his master, West.

Sully.

Of the many distinguished artists which America has produced, he is among the few whom she has cherished in her bosom. We sincerely hope that he is reaping the merited reward of great talents—and of virtues the most amiable and the most endearing. His picture of the Tribute Money, of Mr. Cooke, and several portraits still continue to be exhibited at the academy, and demand a share of the eulogium which is due to the best productions of ancient and modern times with which they are surrounded.

DISTRICT PAY OFFICE,

Norwich, (Con.) Jan. 20, 1816.

THE Subscriber hereby gives notice to all persons who have claims against the United States for military services, prior to the 1st of January, 1815, in the States of Rhode-Island and Connecticut, that he has been informed by the Paymaster-General, that funds will be placed in his hands for their payment, as soon as the Secretary of the Treasury furnishes him with the means of making remittances.

The Subscriber requests all persons, having claims, to forward to this Office a statement of their amount, and description—whether for pay, subsistence, forage, bounty, or clothing; that he may make an estimate to forward to the Paymaster-General, to enable him to remit the necessary amount, "as it is probable these remittances will be made from time to time, in such sums as may be in the power of the Treasury to grant, and as the actual demands on the Paymaster shall require."

When the necessary funds are received by the District Paymaster, information will be given in the Newspapers, in which this notice is inserted, of the time when, and the place where, payment will be made. In the mean time, to facilitate the settlement of claims, the undersigned has thought proper to state the evidences and vouchers necessary to substantiate them.—Non-commissioned officers, musicians and privates, must produce duplicate certificates from the officer under whom they last served, specifying the date and term of enlistment; in what corps; when last paid, and by whom; date of discharge; term for which pay is due; bounty received; bounty due; extra articles of clothing received; that arms and accoutrements are returned in good order; the place where discharged, and the distance to travel to their place of residence; whether they have refunded the $ 24 pay advanced them under the authority of the act of the 20th of January 1815, and by their fidelity have obtained an honorable discharge.—Recruits enlisted under the act of January 11, 1812 (allowing 3 months' extra pay, on their discharge) must procure a certificate from their commanding officer, that they have faithfully performed their duty while in service; and recruits enlisted under the act of 27th of January, 1814, discharged at recruiting stations, not having joined their corps, and been mustered, to obtain the 24 dollars, in part of the 124 dollars bounty, must produce the same certificate.

Arrearages of pay and bounty, which may be due to deceased soldiers, will be paid to their legal representatives, on their producing written and legal evidence of their authority to receive the same: but an administrator, who is a creditor, will be paid no more than his just demand against the deceased, the balance, if any, being reserved for the benefit of his kindred or relations.—Duplicate affidavits, duly taken, of respectable persons, having knowledge of the facts, respecting the legality of the representative of a deceased soldier (in case he die a minor unmarried, and in case no administration has been had on his estate) or duplicate certificates, from a Judge of Probate or a Justice of the Peace, that the claimant is the reputed father of the deceased, will be sufficient evidence for such representative to produce. If the soldier left a widow, and no administration has been had on his estate, the balance can be paid to her, on her producing good evidence, that she was his lawful wife at the time he died.

The certificate of faithful service, required of soldiers who have been discharged, will not be necessary for those who have died in the service.—The widows or children of commissioned officers of the army, who die by reason of wounds received in actual service, are entitled to a half-pay pension for 5 years; and the widows of non-commissioned officers, or soldiers who die or are killed in service, are entitled to three months' extra or gratuitous pay and to the land bounty.

In all cases, where the certificate on honour, of any officer, was requisite to substantiate a claim, the District Paymaster has been instructed to have his OATH substituted in lieu thereof.

GEORGE L. PERKINS.
District Paymaster United States' Army.

NOTICE.

AT A TOWN-COUNCIL,

Holden at the Council Chamber in Newport, on Monday, Feb. 5, 1816.

WHEREAS it has been represented to this Town-Council, That the loose and unlawful manner of joining parties in the state of Matrimony, has in many instances become a nuisance, by fixing unsuitable and improper Paupers on the Town.

It is therefore Voted and Resolved, That the 9th and 10th sections of the Statute Law of this State respecting the prevention of Clandestine Marriages taking place, be published three weeks successively in each of the Newspapers printed in this Town, to the intent, that all persons clothed with power agreeably to the statute law of said State respecting Marriages, &c. may be guarded, and govern themselves accordingly.

By Order,
JONATHAN ALMY,
Council Clerk.

SECTION 9.—And be it further enacted That if any Affiant, Judge of the Su preme Judicial Court, Juſtice of a Court Common Pleas, or of the Peace, or Warde Miniſter or Elder as aforesaid, ſhall join pe sons together in Marriage without due an lawful publication, or when the publicatio hath been lawfully objected to, and the im pediment not removed, the person so offen ing ſhall, upon conviction thereof upon a b of indictment before the Supreme Judici Court, forfeit and pay as a fine a sum not e ceeding One Thousand Dollars, nor less tha Fifty Dollars, to be imposed at the discretio of the said Court, to be holden in the coun where the offence ſhall be committed, o moiety of which fine ſhall be paid unto t General Treasury and the other moiety him or them who ſhall inform of the sa offence.

Sec. 10.—And be it further enacted, That any Affiant, Judge of the Supreme Judic Court, Juſtice of a Court of Common Plea or of the Peace, Warden, or Elder as afo said, ſhall presume to marry any man or w man whom he knows to have a wife or hu band living, or hath had a wife or husba within his knowledge, and doth not kn that such wife or husband is dead in fact or law, or that the person offering to be m ried hath been lawfully divorced, such offi Miniſter or Elder so offending, and be thereof lawfully convicted before the said Court, ſhall pay as a fine, to and for use of the State, the sum of Five Hund Dollars.

Poetry.

WHEN FIRST I MET THEE.

BY THOMAS MOORE.

WHEN First I met thee, warm and young,
There shone such truth about thee,
And on thy lip such promise hung,
I did not dare to doubt thee.
I saw thee change, yet still relied,
Still cling with hope the fonder,
And thought, though false to all beside,
From me thou could'st not wander.
But go, deceiver! go,—
The heart whose hope could make it
Trust one so false, so low,
Deserves that thou should'st break it!

When every tongue thy follies nam'd,
I fled th' unwelcome story;
Or found, in even the faults they blam'd,
Some gleams of future glory.
I still was true, when nearer friends,
Conspir'd to wrong, to slight thee;
The heart, that now thy falsehood rends,
Would then have bled to right thee.
But go, deceiver! go,—
Some day, perhaps, thou'lt waken
From pleasure's dream, to know
The grief of hearts forsaken.

Even now, though youth its bloom has shed,
No lights of age adorn thee;
The few, who lov'd thee once, have fled,
And they who flatter, scorn thee.
Thy midnight cup is pledged to slaves,
No genial ties enwreath it;
The smiling there, like light on graves,
Has rank, cold hearts beneath it!
Go—go—though worlds were thine,
I would not now surrender
One taintless tear of mine
For all thy guilty splendor!

And days may come, thou false one! yet,
When even those ties shall sever;
When thou will call, with vain regret,
On her thou'st lost for ever!
On her who, in thy fortune's fall,
With smiles had still receiv'd thee,
And gladly died to prove thee all
Her fancy first believ'd thee.
Go—go—'tis vain to curse,
'Tis weakness to upbraid thee;
Hate cannot wish thee worse
Than guilt and shame have made thee.

Poetry.

NIGHT,

BY MRS. RADCLIFFE.

O'ER the dim breast of Ocean's wave
Night spreads afar her gloomy wings,
And pensive thought, and silence brings,
Save when the distant waters lave;
Or when the mariner's lone voice
Swells faintly in the passing gale,
Or when the screaming sea-gulls poise
O'er the tall mast and swelling sail.
Bounding the grey gleam of the deep,
Where fancy'd forms arouse the mind,
Dark sweeps the shores, on whose rude steep
Sighs the sad spirit of the wind.
Sweet is the voice upon the air
At Ev'ning's melancholy close,
While the smooth wave in silence flows!
Sweet, sweet the peace its stealing accents bear!
Blest be thy shades, O Night! and blest the song
Thy low winds breathe the distant shores along!

AT A TOWN-COUNCIL,

Holden at the Council Chamber in Newport, on Monday, Feb. 5, 1816.

WHEREAS it has been represented to this Town-Council, That the loose and unlawful manner of joining parties in the state of Matrimony, has in many instances become a nuisance, by fixing unsuitable and improper Paupers on the Town.

It is therefore Voted and Resolved, That the 9th and 10th sections of the Statute Law of this State respecting the prevention of Clandestine Marriages taking place, be published three weeks successively in each of the Newspapers printed in this Town, to the intent, that all persons clothed with power agreeably to the statute law of said State respecting Marriages, &c. may be guarded, and govern themselves accordingly.

By Order,
JONATHAN ALMY,
Council Clerk.

SECTION 9.—And be it further enacted, That if any Aſſiſtant, Judge of the Supreme Judicial Court, Juſtice of a Court of Common Pleas, or of the Peace, or Warden, Miniſter or Elder as aforesaid, ſhall join persons together in Marriage without due and lawful publication, or when the publication hath been lawfully objected to, and the impediment not removed, the person so offending ſhall, upon conviction thereof upon a bill of indictment before the Supreme Judicial Court, forfeit and pay as a fine a sum not exceeding One Thousand Dollars, nor less than Fifty Dollars, to be imposed at the discretion of the said Court, to be holden in the county where the offence ſhall be committed, one moiety of which fine ſhall be paid into the General Treasury and the other moiety to him or them who ſhall inform of the said offence.

SEC. 10.—And be it further enacted, That if any Aſſiſtant, Judge of the Supreme Judicial Court, Juſtice of a Court of Common Pleas, or of the Peace, Warden, or Elder as aforesaid, ſhall presume to marry any man or woman whom he knows to have a wife or husband living or hath had a wife or huſband within his knowledge, and doth not know that such wife or husband is dead in fact or in law, or that the person offering to be married hath been lawfully divorced, such officer, Miniſter or Elder so offending, and being thereof lawfully convicted before the aforesaid Court, ſhall pay as a fine, to and for the use of the State, the sum of Five Hundred Dollars.
